Infection Control

Infection control refers to the practices and procedures used to prevent the spread of infections, especially in healthcare settings. It includes measures such as hand hygiene, use of personal protective equipment (PPE), sterilization of instruments, safe waste disposal, and isolation of infected patients. The goal is to protect both patients and healthcare workers from harmful microorganisms.

Diagnostics

Diagnostics refers to the methods and processes used to identify diseases or medical conditions. It involves tests such as blood tests, imaging (like X-rays or ultrasound), and physical examinations. The goal of diagnostics is to detect health problems accurately and early, so appropriate treatment can be provided.
